

Forensic Psychology

Can you tell if a suspect is lying?

Can psychopaths feel guilt?

Why would an innocent person confess to a crime?

How can a confident eyewitness be wrong?

Can sexual offenders be rehabilitated?

Can we predict when and where crimes will occur?

What makes us think a person is innocent or guilty?

Can children be reliable eyewitnesses?

In Canada's first undergraduate Forensic Psychology program, you'll be exposed to a variety of courses that apply psychology to crime, policing, the courts, corrections, treatment of offenders and other aspects of the justice system.

To study forensic psychology, you'll receive basic training in the core areas of psychology, as well as research methods and data analysis. Your senior-year courses will focus on key forensic psychological issues such as treatment of offenders, eyewitness issues, improving police practices and better understanding criminal behaviour.

Fourth-year practicum and internship options are available.
