

Liberal Studies

Why does a liberal education matter, especially in the era of social media echo chambers and fake news?

What does it mean to be free?

Where do university disciplines come from?

What relationship do large-scale global challenges—such as climate change, poverty and armed conflict—bear to local decision-making?

How can I best prepare for the type of job I am going to have 10 years from now, when it may not even exist yet?

Which conditions make a more just world possible and what role do I have to play in all of this?

Our program builds on the disciplinary strengths of the university to help prepare you for the responsibilities of 21st-century citizenship. You'll also develop knowledge and skills that will assist you in adapting to a competitive, changing job market.

Fourth-year practicum and internship options are available.

Enrol in our four-year Liberal Studies program to find the answers to these questions and more.

What will I study?

- Design an undergraduate arts degree custom-made for you. It will include a Liberal Studies intro and Capstone course, plus academic advising support along the way.
- Take courses from across the social science disciplines such as Criminology and Justice, Forensic Psychology, Legal Studies, Political Science, and Communication and Digital Media Studies.
- Choose electives from our other faculties as well, including Business and IT, Education, Energy Systems, Engineering, Health Sciences, and Science. They will all count towards your degree.

What can I do with my degree?

You'll be prepared to pursue graduate or law school, and career opportunities such as:

- Consultant
- Entrepreneur
- Federal and Provincial Government Administrator
- Government Researcher and Policy Analyst
- Policy Analyst in business, government or non-profit
